Life After Graduation

The Class of 1991's senior year has finally arrived and there are many different reactions about graduation. Some class members will continue their education, while others may start job hunting or just take time to relax. Friendships have grown and strengthened through the past twelve years, and it will hopefully, keep the class in touch after graduation.

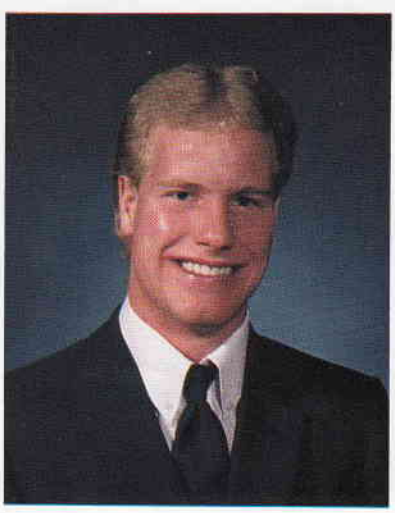

Some of the paths the students will be taking after graduation are quite different from each other. Heather Armbrustmacher plans to attend LCC and find a part-time job. Mariela Gamboa, our exchange student from Chile, will be traveling to California for a month and then she will return to her home country. She says she is going to "start studying international relations and languages" and "the first thing I'm going to do is dance all night." Kristi Thelen decided to go into dental hygiene last summer because she felt it would be "really interesting." Like many of the other seniors, Don Miller would like to "find a better job and 'party'."
