Responsiblity

It Comes With The Title!

It finally happened. You're a senior, the top one in the school. It was what everyone was waiting for — that was until you found out that being a senior isn't all fun and games.

Sure, seniors get out of school two weeks before everyone else, they don't have to take final exams. Face it — they're the ones everyone wants to be. But, what about everything else seniors get to do?

At the beginning of the year, seniors take the ACT or SAT. After that comes college application forms, college campus tours and interviews. At the same time, they're watching scholarship deadlines.

Some of the pressure leaves at the end of first semester. But new ones arise. They're still watching for scholarships and financial aide while also trying to decide on which college they're going to accept. They have to write a resume and start thinking about a summer job. Open houses and graduation will keep them very busy.

Deadlines, forms and interviews will have you going in circles but despite all this, your senior year will be a great year.
